A BIG GAS BUBBLE.

How the Spirits Spoke to Mrs. Beane.

MOSES RODGERS AND HIS COIN

A Story of Gigantic Speculation and Utter Collapse in This Valley.

The mention of the name of Mrs. V. P. Beane in connection with troubles in the Golden Gate branch of the Theosophical society, recalls a chapter of interesting history of the San Joaquin valley, in which she and her husband played a prominent part. It has not been so long ago that it should be forgotten, as the whole South sea bubble of gas speculation here rose and fell within the past ten years; but there is not much remaining to show for it except the records in the clerk's office of Tulare, Merced, Fresno, Stanislaus and San Joaquin counties, where articles of incorporation were filed, calling for stock and subscriptions running into the millions of dollars. A transcontinental railroad scheme would scarcely speak so familiarly of money in vast quantities as the gas bubble of the present. Several great schemes were proposed, but none of them were carried out. The gas bubble was a speculation in the gas of the San Joaquin valley, and had enough left to drive factories and live furnaces, and create a sort of industry from Stockton to Bakersfield.
